DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 09/160,581 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 101

2. 35 U.S.C. 101 reads as follows:

Whoever invents or discovers any new and useful process, machine, manufacture, or composition of matter, or any new and useful improvement thereof, may obtain a patent therefor, subject to the conditions and requirements of this title.

3. Claims 5-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 101 because the claimed invention lacks patentable utility. It is not possible for the blade to move in negative speeds. It is unclear whether the blade travel direction for cutting the optical fiber occurs during negative blade speed. It is not possible for the blade to have negative blade thickness to derive positive speeds. In re Cortright, 49 USPQ2d 1464 (Fed. Cir. 1999); In re Gottlieb, 140 USPQ 665 (CCPA 1964); and In re Citron, 138 USPQ 516 (CCPA 1963).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

4. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

5. Claims 5-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for moving a cutting blade greater than 0 mm/minute, does not reasonably provide enablement for moving the blade at a speed less than 0 mm/minute. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. Speed is an absolute value.

6. Claims 5-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as containing subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. The specification, as originally filed, fails to provide support for " $\beta \leq -253\alpha + 65$, and when the speed β is positive, the cutting blade moves in a direction for cutting optical fiber".

7. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

8. Claims 5-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claims 5 and 11: the expression $\beta \leq -253\alpha + 65$ renders the claim vague and indefinite. It is unclear how a blade can travel in negative speed and have a thickness to meet the expression. The speed takes into account only the distance traveled; it does not take into account the direction of travel. Speed is always a positive number (absolute value). If it is a negative number, the blade will travel back in time. This expression violates every known physical law. Further, it is inconceivable that a blade having a thickness of less than $65/253$ (0.257) mm to cut an optical cable. Does the blade travel direction for cutting the optical fiber occurs during negative blade speed? How can a blade have negative thickness (say -1) to come up with a blade speed of 318 mm/min? What happens if β is negative? What happens if β is never positive? Does the blade disappears if β never meets the “when” limitation? Does the blade speed starts from a positive speed and decreases to negative speeds as the blade approaches the fiber since β expression is less than equal to $-253\alpha-65$? What happens to the blade during negative speed? Does speed depends on direction?

Examiner’s physics textbook does not use the term “speed” synonymously with the term “velocity”. The textbook distinctly gives two different definitions for each term.

NOTE: No art rejections have been applied to the claims 5-16 since there are a great deal of confusion and uncertainty as to the proper interpretation of the limitations of claims.

Therefore, it would not be proper to reject such claims on the basis of prior art. See MPEP 2173.06.

Conclusion

9. Applicants are duly reminded that a full and proper response to this Office Action that includes any amendment to the claims and specification of the application as originally filed requires that the applicant point out the support for any amendment made to the disclosure, including the claims. See 37 CFR 1.111 and MPEP 2163.06.
